Field Trip to Thottambedu MPDO Office

Date: August 14, 2019

On August 14, 2019, the Department of Political Science organized a field trip to the Thottambedu Mandal Parishad Development Office (MPDO) as part of the academic curriculum. The trip was led by B.Nagaiah, Lecturer in Political Science, and was attended by a group of enthusiastic students.

The primary objective of the visit was to provide students with a firsthand understanding of the functioning of a local government office. Upon arrival, the students were warmly welcomed by the MPDO officials. They were given a comprehensive tour of the office premises, where they observed various departments and their respective responsibilities.

The MPDO officials explained the role and significance of the MPDO in rural development and administration. They elaborated on the various schemes and programs implemented by the government at the local level to address the needs of the community. The students were particularly interested in learning about the implementation of welfare schemes, infrastructure development projects, and disaster management initiatives.

During the interactive session, the students had the opportunity to ask questions and clarify their doubts regarding the functioning of the MPDO. The officials patiently answered their queries, providing valuable insights into the challenges and opportunities faced by local governance.

The field trip proved to be a valuable learning experience for the students. It helped them bridge the gap between theoretical knowledge and practical application. By witnessing the operations of the MPDO firsthand, the students gained a deeper appreciation for the role of local governance in shaping the lives of the people.

Overall, the field trip to the Thottambedu MPDO office was a successful endeavour that enriched the academic experience of the students. It provided them with a valuable opportunity to explore the intricacies of local governance and its impact on society.
